APPLICANT GLOBAL TISSUE GROUP, INC. (“Global Tissue”) moves the Board pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 6(b) and TBMP §509.01(a) to extend the current discovery schedule for sixty (60) days for the reasons set forth below. Global Tissue has conferred with Opposer Georgia-Pacific Consumer Products LP (Georgia-Pacific) regarding this motion, and Georgia-Pacific does not consent to the proposed extension.

(1) Global Tissue has recently retained new counsel that was not previously involved in the case; and

(2) Georgia-Pacific has indicated that none of its witnesses are available for deposition until after the current close of discovery; and

(4) Georgia-Pacific has not produced certain documents, which is the subject of a Motion to Compel being concurrently filed herewith; and

(5) Counsel for Georgia-Pacific made a similar motion for a 60-day extension of time when Kilpatrick Stockton replaced Hunton & Williams, Georgia Pacific's former counsel, such motion being granted by the Board; and

(6) This is Global Tissue's first request for an extension of the discovery period.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Following the Board's most recent decision of September 9, 2009, an Amended Notice of Opposition was filed by Georgia-Pacific and an Amended Answer was filed by Global Tissue. Moreover, a further deposition of Global Tissue's 30(b)(6) designee was conducted on October 23, 2009 in accordance with the Board's order. Following completion of this further deposition, Hoffmann & Baron was retained by Global Tissue, and asked to assume responsibility for the above-referenced Opposition on a going-forward basis.

On November 2, 2009, the undersigned attorney contacted Charlene Marino, counsel for Georgia-Pacific and informed her that Hoffmann & Baron was assuming responsibility for this matter, and that Hoffmann & Baron would be filing a Notice of Appearance. Moreover, Ms. Marino was informed that Hoffmann & Baron would be serving Notices of Deposition directed to the individuals named in the discovery responses received from Georgia-Pacific. Counsel for Global Tissue proposed deposition dates of November 18, 19 and 20, 2009. This conversation was confirmed by email dated November 2, 2009, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit A.

On November 3, 2009, Hoffmann & Baron filed a Notice of Appearance in this proceeding, a copy of which was served upon counsel for Georgia-Pacific (attached as Exhibit B). On November 4, 2009, six Notices of Deposition were served upon counsel for Georgia-Pacific (attached as Exhibit C). The dates set forth in the Notices were the dates proposed to Georgia-Pacific's counsel during the telephone discussion of November 2, 2009. Each of the individuals noticed were identified in Georgia-Pacific's discovery responses.

In particular, Georgia-Pacific's Initial Disclosures (attached as Exhibit D) identified Andrew Towle and David Sayyed under Rule 26(a)(1)(A)(i) as individuals likely to have discoverable information. Georgia-Pacific's Response to Applicant's Interrogatories No. 2 (attached as Exhibit E) identified Andrew Towle, Patrick Davis and Thomas Best as the "persons most knowledgeable about the manufacture, marketing, promotion, distribution, advertising and/or sales of any Opposer's products or services bearing Opposer's Marks." Georgia-Pacific's Response to Interrogatory No. 12 (attached as Exhibit F) identified Emily K. Boss, Christine M. Cason and Barbara Edwards as the "person known by Opposer to have supplied information for or participated in responding to these interrogatories and Applicant's First Requests for Production of Documents to Opposer." Accordingly, the five individuals named in Global Tissue's Notices of Depositions were persons identified by Georgia-Pacific itself in its responsive papers.

In addition to the five individuals, Global Tissue served a request for a 30(b)(6) deposition. Global Tissue's counsel advised Ms. Marino during the telephone conversation of November 2 that these individual depositions would likely be short in duration, and in fact noticed several of the depositions as half-day depositions. Moreover, counsel for Global Tissue advised Ms. Marino that once Georgia-Pacific designated its 30(b)(6) witness, it would likely not be necessary to depose that same person on an individual basis. In sum, Hoffmann & Baron, having assumed representation of this proceeding on November 2, 2009, promptly advised Ms. Marino of its entry into this case and its intention to notice depositions, and thereafter promptly served such Notices of Deposition upon Georgia-Pacific. Counsel for Global Tissue also made clear to Ms. Marino that he would work to accommodate the schedule of Georgia-Pacific's personnel, and that he would conduct these depositions in the most efficient manner possible.

Ms. Marino advised the undersigned attorney on November 5, 2009 that not one of the named individuals or a 30(b)(6) designee was available during the remaining month of the discovery period, but that Andrew Towle would be available on December 3, 2009 in a 30(b)(6) capacity, one day after the close of discovery. Ms. Marino further advised the undersigned attorney that Georgia-Pacific believed that noticing six depositions was unreasonable, but that Georgia-Pacific would agree to produce a 30(b)(6) witness, as well as one other witness, both outside of the discovery period. Finally, Ms. Marino advised the undersigned attorney that Georgia-Pacific was not willing to extend the discovery period.

Global Tissue refused to accept Georgia-Pacific's proposal, and insisted that Global Tissue was entitled to depose all of the named individuals. After reminding Ms. Marino that the named individuals were the same persons identified in Georgia-Pacific's responses, counsel for Global Tissue requested that Ms. Marino confirm with her client whether or not they would be willing to produce all the named individuals, and to provide proposed dates for such individuals. No response was ever received to this request.

Accordingly, counsel for Global Tissue telephoned Ms. Marino on November 16, 2009, and followed up by letter dated November 17, 2009, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit G. A redacted version of Ms. Marino's letter of November 18, 2009 is attached as Exhibit H.¹

The letters of November 17th and November 18th also discuss Georgia-Pacific's failure to provide a privilege log until November 18, 2009, Georgia-Pacific's failure to identify certain litigation/cancellation proceedings with Kimberly-Clark involving the marks in question, Georgia-Pacific's failure to produce documents from these other proceedings, and Georgia-Pacific's failure to produce a search report directed to one of the cited registrations. These points are discussed further hereinbelow, and in Global Tissue's concurrently filed Motion to Compel.

Counsel for Global Tissue again conferred with Ms. Marino by telephone on November 19, 2009 to confirm that Georgia Pacific was unwilling to consent to a 60-day extension of the discovery period, that Georgia-Pacific was unwilling to produce all six witnesses, and that Georgia-Pacific was unwilling to consent to the filing of an Amended Answer. Global Tissue's counsel was advised that Georgia-Pacific was standing by the position set forth in its November 18th letter. This discussion was confirmed by letter dated November 20, 2009, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit I.

ARGUMENT

A party moving for an extension of the discovery period need only show “good cause” for the requested extension. TBMP § 509.01. Moreover, “a party moving to extend time must demonstrate that the requested extension of time is not necessitated by the party’s own lack of diligence or unreasonable delay in taking the required action during the time previously allotted therefore.” TBMP § 509.01(a). “Ordinarily, the Board is liberal in granting extensions of time requested before the period of time has elapsed, as long as the moving party has not been guilty of negligence and bad faith and the privilege of extensions is not abused.” Mattel, Inc. v. Super Duper, Inc., 2005 WL 1505382, *3, No. 91159957 (T.T.A.B. June 21, 2005) (granting motion to extend discovery where movant had requested discovery prior to expiration of discovery period). In fact, the preceding language is taken from Georgia-Pacific’s own Motion to Extend the Discovery Period, which it previously filed in this same proceeding.

Good cause exists to extend the discovery period in this case due at least in part to (1) Global Tissue’s recent substitution of counsel; (2) Georgia-Pacific’s position that none of its witnesses were available during the remaining month of the discovery period; and (3) Georgia-Pacific’s failure to produce documents in its possession which are responsive to Global Tissue’s Requests (as discussed more fully in Global Tissue’s co-pending Motion to Compel).

When the firm of Kilpatrick Stockton replaced the firm of Hunton & Williams in the proceeding, Georgia-Pacific asked this Board to extend the discovery period, in large part based upon the fact that there had been a change of counsel. This extension request was granted by the Board. Georgia-Pacific now seeks to oppose Global Tissue's request for the same relief which it sought earlier in this proceeding. In the same manner the Board saw fit to grant Georgia-Pacific a 60-day extensions of the discovery period, it is respectfully submitted that Global Tissue be accorded the same courtesy.

On being retained in this action, Hoffmann & Baron promptly notified Kilpatrick of the change of counsel, and promptly filed a Notice of Appearance. Kilpatrick was advised of the depositions by telephone on November 2, 2009, and was served six Notices of Deposition on November 4, 2009, leaving the entire month of November and the first two days for scheduling such depositions. Counsel for Global Tissue made clear that he would work around the schedules of the noticed individuals, that depositions would likely be short in duration, and that multiple depositions could likely be taken on the same day. Rather than respond with alternative dates than those suggested by Global Tissue, Georgia-Pacific simply stated that not one of its witnesses was available during the remainder of the discovery period, i.e., not one witness was available over the next four weeks.

It is clear that the intention of Georgia-Pacific was to "run out" the discovery clock. Accordingly, rather than agree to produce any of its witnesses during the remainder of the discovery period, Georgia-Pacific presented an alternative proposal to Global Tissue wherein it would produce only two witnesses, and only produce such witnesses after the close of discovery. See Physicians Formula Cosmetics, Inc. v. Small Giant, LLC, 2003 WL 21678400, *3-4 (T.T.A.B. June 30, 2003) (granting motion to extend where, among other reasons, witnesses could not be deposed within the discovery period).

Global Tissue declined to accept this offer, and explained that it was clearly entitled to depose the named individuals since these were the very same persons named by Georgia-Pacific's in its discovery responses. Global Tissue argued that it was unreasonable for Georgia-Pacific to not allow Global Tissue the opportunity to question these individuals. Global Tissue's co-pending Motion to Compel addresses the issue of these noticed depositions.

Although Hoffmann & Baron has only been involved in this proceeding since the beginning of this month, it has made every reasonable effort to review the 32,000+ pages of documents produced by Georgia Pacific. However, it did not take long to discover that this production was deficient in several regards.

First, it was discovered that Georgia Pacific had failed to provide a privilege log. In response to our inquiry, a 21-page privilege log was produced on November 18, 2009. This privilege log identifies over 250 allegedly privileged documents, and will require additional time to consider/review the validity of the asserted privilege.

Second, it was discovered that not a single search report directed to any of the twelve marks identified in the Notice of Opposition had been produced. When questioned about this fact, Georgia Pacific responded that only a single search report exists, but that it was not discoverable because such document was privileged and, in any event, was not relevant because it had been conducted seven years ago. This position is of course contrary to outstanding TTAB law, and is discussed in Global Tissue's co-pending Motion to Compel.

Third, it was discovered that Georgia-Pacific had failed to provide Global Tissue with documents from its ongoing dispute with Kimberly-Clark, such dispute being the subject of both a District Court action in Chicago and a cancellation proceeding before the TTAB. The District Court action was originally filed in Atlanta in February of 2009 by Georgia-Pacific, but was subsequently transferred to Chicago upon motion by Kimberly-Clark. The cancellation proceeding was instituted by Kimberly-Clark on September 10, 2009 as Cancellation No. 92051438. Despite having been asked for such information in Global Tissue's discovery requests, e.g., Request Nos. 16, 17, 21 and 22 of Applicant's First Set of Requests for the Production of Documents (attached as Exhibit J), Georgia-Pacific failed to produce documents from these disputes, or to even identify the existence of such disputes.² Global Tissue's co-pending Motion to Compel addresses this issue as well.

CONCLUSION

In sum, Global Tissue has acted diligently throughout the discovery period, and has made attempts to cooperate with Georgia Pacific to complete its discovery. Due to Georgia Pacific's unwillingness to produce any of its witnesses during the remainder of the discovery period, and due to Georgia-Pacific's unwillingness to produce the mentioned search report and Kimberly-Clark documents, Global Tissue will be unable to complete discovery prior to the expiration of the current discovery schedule. This is ² Although counsel for Georgia-Pacific has taken the position that these prior proceedings are not relevant and/or responsive to any discovery requests, it should be noted that the Amended Complaint filed by Georgia-Pacific on March 18, 2009 actually identifies many of the same trademark cited in this opposition proceeding (See Pages 14-16 of the Amended Complaint attached as Exhibit K), and that the Motion to Suspend filed in Cancellation Proceeding No. 92051438 includes the statement by Georgia-Pacific that "Georgia-Pacific's Amended Complaint asserts rights deriving in part from its QUILTED and QUILTED NORTHERN trademarks, which are covered by numerous trademark registrations, including..." (see Pages 2-4 of the Motion to Suspend attached as Exhibit L). It is to be noted that both the Amended Complaint and the Motion to Suspend were prepared by the very same law firm representing Georgia-Pacific in this proceeding.

Global Tissue's first request for an extension of time, and it is not for the purpose for delay but is to allow Global Tissue the time to complete the discovery necessary for it to defend itself in this proceeding.

For these reasons, Global Tissue respectfully requests that its Motion to Extend the Discovery Period be granted, and that all current discovery deadlines be extended for a period of sixty (60) days.

Charlene:

Thank you for taking the time to speak with me. As I mentioned, our firm has now been retained by GTG to handle the above-referenced opposition on a going forward basis. We will be filing a Notice of Appearance shortly. It is our understanding that discovery is set to close on December 2, 2009. We intend to Notice several depositions, including a 30(b)(6) as well as those individuals identified in your discovery responses, namely Andrew Towle, David Sayyed, Thomas Best and Patrick Davis. I wanted to advise you as soon as possible so that you can check with your client as to the availability of these individuals during the week of November 16. We of course will make every effort to accommodate your client, but it may make sense to attempt to schedule several days back to back. Our initial thought is to schedule 3 days, with the idea that we can finish up sooner. Would November 18, 19 and 20 be convenient? As I also mentioned, we are in the process of reviewing the 32,000 + pages of documents produced by G-P. I will let you know as soon as possible if we have any questions regarding this production.

Thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Glenn

Re: Georgia-Pacific Consumer Products, LP v. Global Tissue Group, Inc.
Opposition No. 91184529

Dear Charlene:

This letter is to confirm our conversation of November 16, 2009 and to set forth in writing several outstanding issues relating to the ongoing discovery in the above-referenced opposition proceeding. We have also asked for your consent to a sixty (60) day extension of the discovery period.

I. Substitution of Counsel and Noticed Depositions

As we advised you by telephone on November 2, 2009, and in our subsequent email that same day, Hoffmann & Baron was retained by Global Tissue Group (GTG) at the beginning of this month to represent them in this opposition as it proceeds forward. At that time, I indicated that we would be filing a Notice of Appearance and noticing several depositions. The Notice of Appearance was subsequently filed on November 3, 2009, and six Notices of Deposition were served on you on November 4, 2009.

You advised us by telephone on November 5, 2009 that none of the named individuals were available during the month of November, but that you would be willing to produce Andrew Towle as your 30(b)(6) witness on December 3, 2009, as well as one additional witness – also to be produced outside the discovery cut-off date. We indicated at that time that we could not agree to such a proposal, and that we would insist upon scheduling depositions for all of the named individuals. We asked you to confirm with your client whether or not they would be willing to produce all of the named individuals. We also asked for proposed dates for these individuals. No response was received from you subsequent to that telephone conversation, nor did you return our phone call of November 12, 2009. When we spoke yesterday, you still did not have a definitive answer as to whether your client would produce all of the named witnesses, nor did you have any proposed dates available.

As we explained to you during our conversation of November 5, 2009, the individuals identified in the Notices of Deposition are the very same persons which you identified to us as relevant individuals in both your initial disclosures and interrogatory responses. For you to now suggest that we should not be allowed the opportunity to depose these individuals, particularly in view of the 32,000 plus page documents which you have produced to us, is clearly unreasonable and contrary to the TTAB rules. Accordingly, please provide us with dates for all the Noticed individuals, or confirm for us that your client is unwilling to produce such individuals.

II. GP Document Production

We have now had the opportunity to initially review the 32,000+ documents which were produced by GP. As we discussed with you yesterday, there are several significant deficiencies with your production.

1. The Lack of the Privilege Log

We have been unable to identify a privilege log in the documents produced to us. When we asked you yesterday whether a privilege log had been produced, you were unable to tell us whether such a log had been produced, and if not, why not. Is it GP's position in this proceeding that not one single privilege document exists within the files of GP? If that is in fact your position, please confirm that fact for us in writing. If not, we expect to promptly receive the necessary privilege log required by Rule 26.

2. The Failure to Produce Documents as they are Kept in the Usual Course of Business

As you know, GP produced the bulk of its documents in electronic format. It appears, however, that many of the multi-page documents were scanned as individual pages – which makes it difficult/impossible to determine how these documents were actually kept in the usual course of business. The electronic index you provided to us does not help in this regard since it merely provides large groupings of documents with general titles, or no titles at all.

We have also reviewed the chart which you prepared for Mr. Katz in response to his earlier objection. Although this chart makes an attempt to identify which documents are responsive to which requests, we must also object to the general nature of this document in that it simply identifies thousands of documents (by Bates Numbers only) as responsive to many of the requests. In addition, your response to GTG Document Request No. 1 is not understood since it does not identify any documents, while your response to GTG Document Request No. 19 and 20 suggests that you in fact do have privileged documents which you have not produced or identified on a privilege log.

Charlene R. Marino, Esq.

November 17, 2009

3. Missing Documents

Our initial review has revealed that the GP document production is clearly deficient.

First, no search reports directed to the marks identified in the Notice of Opposition have been produced. As you know, such search reports are not considered to be privileged by the TTAB. Although you stated yesterday that you do not believe that such search reports exist, we find it difficult to believe that GP has never conducted a search with respect to any of the twelve marks identified in the Notice of Opposition. If this in fact the case, please confirm that fact for us in writing.

Second, the produced documents do not appear to include any documents relating to the current Kimberly-Clark litigation/cancellation proceedings. When I asked you about this yesterday, you indicated that such documents were probably not produced because the cancellation was only recently filed, when in fact it was filed over two months ago. It was actually filed the day after you received the most recent decision from the TTAB regarding this opposition proceeding. Under the Federal Rules, GP has a continuing duty to update its prior discovery responses. It is unclear to us why you have not produced such documents.

You also indicated during our telephone conversation yesterday that you may not have produced these documents because the original litigation matter was not responsive to our discovery requests. Again, this explanation is clearly inadequate in that several of GTG's requests (e.g., Request No. 16) specifically refer to the production of such documents. In fact, we note that the Complaint filed in the Kimberly-Clark litigation was not only prepared by your firm, but actually signed by your colleague Charles Henn, who is also appearing in this proceeding. Your response to me yesterday that this prior proceeding did not involve the marks in question would not appear to be accurate in view of the contents of this Complaint, which, for example, list GP's Northern Quilted marks on pages 15-16 of such document.

4. Competitive Marks

We have been unable to locate even a single document among the 32,000+ pages which contains any reference to a competitive use of the term "quilt", "quilted", or a variation thereof (other than the litigation/adversarial documents provided to us.) We find it difficult to believe that GP is not in possession of a single document showing any of its competitors using one of these terms. For example, Bounty has been using the mark "Bounty Double Quilted" since at least as early as September 2001. Is it GP's position that not one document exists within the confines of GP that reference this mark, or other such uses of these terms by your competitors?

III. Request to Extend Discovery

In view of the points discussed hereinabove, we have asked you to consent to a sixty (60) day extension of the discovery period. In this regard, we remind you that when Kilpatrick took over representation of this matter for GP, you made a similar request to extend the discovery period. It would be quite unreasonable for GP to now oppose GTG's request for the same relief that GP sought at the time Kilpatrick entered this proceeding.

IV. Settlement Discussions

With respect to the issue of settlement, you asked during our conversation of November 5, 2009 whether we had had any settlement discussions with our client. At that time, I advised you that we had not, but that I would discuss this matter with my client. Accordingly, I spoke with my client regarding settlement, and advised you of their offer during our discussion yesterday. Your suggestion on the telephone that our proposal was not even worth passing along to your client was both improper and not understood. You asked us to provide you with a settlement proposal, which we did. Your client is free to accept it or reject it, but the offer was made in good faith pursuant to your suggestion. For you to suggest otherwise does not advance the nature of such discussions.

V. Amended Answer

Although not discussed yesterday, and upon further review of this case, we intend to file a Motion for Leave to File an Amended Answer. Our Amended Answer will include counterclaims for cancellation of many of the marks identified in your Notice of Opposition. You will recall that your firm recently requested permission to file an amended Notice of Opposition in which you added additional grounds for opposing our application. We did not oppose such motion. Likewise, we would expect your firm to allow us the courtesy to file an Amended Answer without opposition.

VI. Requested Action

1. Please advise us by 5:00 p.m. EST tomorrow whether your client will agree to the requested sixty (60) day extension of the discovery period. If we do not receive a response by that time, we will proceed with the understanding that your client is not willing to consent to this extension request.

2. Please advise us by 5:00 p.m. EST tomorrow whether your client will agree to produce all of the noticed individuals for depositions. If we do not receive a response by that time, we will proceed with the understanding that your client is refusing to produce all of these named individuals.

3. Please advise us by 5:00 p.m. EST tomorrow whether your client will oppose the filing of an Amended Answer.

4. Please provide us with the necessary privilege log, or confirm that no such privilege documents exists.

5. Please provide us with updated electronic copies of the GP documents indexed in a manner which corresponds to the way such documents were kept in the usual course of business, or an updated index which clearly identifies the documents contained on the disks produced in response to GTG's document requests.

6. Please provide us with copies of any search reports directed to the marks identified in the Notice of Opposition, or confirm for us that no such search reports exist.

7. Please provide us with copies of all responsive documents relating to the Kimberly-Clark litigation/cancellation proceedings, including all correspondence between the parties.

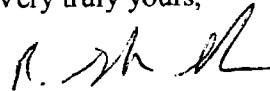

8. Please confer with your client and determine whether they are in possession of any documents showing use of the terms "quilt", "quilted" or variations thereof by their competitors, other than the litigation/adversarial documents provided to us. If no such documents exist, please confirm that for us in writing.

Re: Georgia-Pacific Consumer Products, LP v. Global Tissue Group, Inc.
Opposition No. 91184529

Dear Glenn:

This is in response to your November 17 letter.

I. Global Tissue's Untimely Noticed Depositions and Request for Discovery Extension

Georgia-Pacific does not consent to a 60-day extension of the discovery period.

Without any notice, on November 4 your client sent six (6) deposition notices, unilaterally setting the depositions for November 18 and 19. As you know, deposing party must give "reasonable notice" in writing to the other party of a discovery deposition. See FED. R. CIV. P. 30(b)(1). Particularly with the upcoming Thanksgiving holiday, Global Tissue's notices were not reasonable advance notice.

While we believe that Global Tissue failed to notice depositions in a timely fashion, despite over sixteen (16) months during the discovery period in which such depositions could have been scheduled, we offered to make available two witnesses—a 30(b)(6) representative and a witness of Global Tissue's choosing—even though they would not be available until after the close of discovery. Your client decided not to accept this compromise offer.

This matter has been ongoing since June 2008, and discovery has been reset twice--on May 4, 2009, and on September 9, 2009--both delays due to obstreperousness on the part of Global Tissue. Indeed, the reason Georgia-Pacific previously requested a 60-day extension of the discovery period early in this matter (which was opposed by Global Tissue) was in part due to the change of counsel, but primarily because Global Tissue (1) refused to consent to Georgia-Pacific's proposed Protective Order eventually approved by the Board; (2) refused to produce documents prior to the Board's resolution of Georgia-Pacific's Motion for Protective Order; and (3) would not make its witnesses available for deposition during the original discovery period. The second reset of the discovery period was necessitated by the refusal of Global Tissue's witnesses to answer relevant questions during their depositions, requiring Georgia-Pacific to move to compel responses with the Board.

We previously asked Global Tissue's counsel on several occasions whether it intended to depose anyone from Georgia-Pacific, and on every occasion, we were informed that Global Tissue did not intend to take any depositions. Global Tissue has had ample time to complete discovery in this matter, notwithstanding the change in counsel. It willingly chose to sleep on its rights, and cannot reasonably seek to extend discovery at the eleventh hour. See Springs Window Fashions, LP v. Novo Industries, LP, 323 F.3d 989 (Fed. Cir. 2003) ("When a party fails to secure discoverable evidence due to his own lack of diligence, it is not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to refuse to grant a continuance.") Georgia-Pacific maintains its offer: Global Tissue may depose Andrew Towle individually and as a 30(b)(6) representative of the company on December 3 in Atlanta. Georgia-Pacific objects to the other untimely noticed depositions.

II. Georgia-Pacific's Document Production

1. Privilege Log

We have not yet received a privilege log from Global Tissue; please produce one immediately. Per your request, enclosed is a copy of Georgia-Pacific's privilege log.

2. Production of Documents as Kept in the Normal Course of Business

We disagree with your claim that Georgia-Pacific failed to produce documents as they are kept in the normal course of business. On the contrary, we produced both hard-copy documents and imaged electronic files as they were originally kept by various Georgia-Pacific employees. Both the electronic index and hard-copy index that we provided to Global Tissue's counsel months ago is more than sufficient to meet Georgia-Pacific's discovery obligations. Please inform us of any legal authority standing for the proposition that Georgia-Pacific's production has been improper.

As an additional accommodation, we are willing to provide load files for the electronically-stored information that identifies the Bates number ranges for each document, if you believe that this information would assist you in your review.

3. Other Requested Documents

a. Search Reports

Georgia-Pacific has conducted a diligent search and is not in possession, custody, or control of any trademark search reports concerning the marks at issue in this matter. The only exception is a 2002 search obtained in connection with the mark IT'S ALL IN THE QUILTING. This search report, however is not discoverable. Not only is the in-house legal department's clearance search privileged, but it is not relevant, as it was conducted seven years ago and any marks cited in the report would have no bearing on the current market perception of the QUILTED® marks at issue.

b. Documents Pertaining to Kimberly-Clark Litigation

Documents pertaining to the litigation between Georgia-Pacific and Kimberly-Clark ("KC"), are not responsive to Request No. 16, which seeks: "All documents and things referring or relating to, or showing or documenting, objections Opposer has made to or relating to any third party's use and/or registration of any name, Mark, or designations, based on the use of the term 'QUILT' or a variation of that term." The litigation between Georgia-Pacific and KC does involve an objection to KC's use of the term "QUILT." Rather, it relates to KC's diamond-shaped emboss pattern imprinted on sheets of bath tissue.

To the extent your client would like to review documents from that proceeding, the pleadings are publicly available on the Internet through the PACER and TTABVUE systems. The documents produced to KC by Georgia-Pacific in that litigation are among the materials produced to Global Tissue in this matter, so you already have those. To the extent you would be seeking documents produced by KC, Georgia-Pacific cannot produce them in this action because KC produced them on a "confidential" basis pursuant to a Protective Order. Correspondence between litigation counsel for Georgia-Pacific and KC relating to things such as extensions, scheduling, page limits, and the like have absolutely no relevance to the present action.

c. Documents Regarding Third Party Use of "Quilt"

Georgia-Pacific has produced the responsive documents in its possession pertaining to third party use of "Quilt," including all documents pertaining to its enforcement actions. To the extent Global Tissue desires documents from third parties, it should have subpoenaed them during the discovery period.

November 18, 2009

III. Amended Answer

You ask Georgia-Pacific to consent to a motion to amend Global Tissue's Answer to assert counterclaims to cancel certain of Georgia-Pacific's registrations. Please provide the basis for these counterclaims, so we can consider whether an amendment at this late stage is appropriate.

Georgia-Pacific's Motion to Amend its Notice of Opposition was based upon newly discovered information in Global Tissue's discovery responses and deposition testimony; namely, that Global Tissue did not have any documents or other information sufficient to show that it had a bona fide intent to use the QUILTY mark at the time the application was filed. If the counterclaims Global Tissue seeks leave to add are based upon information that is not newly uncovered, Georgia-Pacific is not inclined to consent to such a motion.

IV. Settlement

Global Tissue demanded that Georgia-Pacific pay it [REDACTED] to withdraw the QUILTY application. Your demand is absurd and amounts to nothing more than extortion. We welcome a reasonable explanation as to why Georgia-Pacific should pay [REDACTED] dollars to prevent Global Tissue from registering a mark that (a) clearly infringes Georgia-Pacific's rights; and (b) has never been used by Global Tissue.

Rest assured, we passed your "offer" along to Georgia-Pacific within minutes after our phone call yesterday, and it is hereby rejected. Georgia-Pacific does not pay infringers to stop infringing.

V. Interrogatories

The individual who signed the interrogatory verification is Andrew Towle.

Sincerely,

Charlene R. Marino

Re: Georgia-Pacific Consumer Products, LP v. Global Tissue Group, Inc.
Opposition No. 91184529

Dear Charlene:

This letter is to confirm our discussion yesterday. In particular, we reviewed the topics raised in our letter of November 17, 2009, and your response of November 18, 2009. It is our understanding that Georgia-Pacific intends to stand by the positions set forth in your letter. If this understanding is incorrect, please advise us accordingly. Otherwise, as we advised you yesterday, we are proceeding with the filing of the motions mentioned in our November 17th letter.

Although not discussed during our conversation yesterday, we feel we must respond to the comments set forth in your November 18th letter regarding our settlement discussions. You state that Global Tissue "demanded that Georgia-Pacific pay it $500,000 to withdraw the QUILTY application." This depiction of our settlement discussions is both misleading, and typical of G-P's bullying tactics. You asked us to discuss settlement with our client – we did so – and thereafter presented an offer to you in good faith. You may not have liked our offer, but to describe it as (1) a demand, (2) absurd, and (3) extortion is a clear mischaracterization of our discussions.

First, we did not demand anything. We presented an offer to you at your request. Second, what you may find to be "absurd", others would find to be reasonable. The offer we presented to you was made with a sound business basis. Third, your statement that our offer is "extortion" ignores the fact that (i) you asked us for such an offer, (ii) that there is no evidence that our client has acted in anything but good faith, and (iii) that the Trademark Office considered our application in view all of G-P's marks, and thereafter approved the application for publication.

Next, your comment that this mark "clearly infringes Georgia-Pacific's rights" is a misstatement of any trademark law of which I am familiar. A mark must first be used before infringement can be found.

You then suggest that Global Tissue's mark has no value because it has not yet been used. This statement is not understood. As you know, U.S. Trademark Law allows for the filing of an intent-to-use application for a mark which has not yet been used. That is the whole purpose underlying that section of the law. Thus, use of a mark is clearly not dispositive of whether such mark has value.

Finally, your statement that "Georgia-Pacific does not pay infringers to stop infringing" is to use your own language "absurd", does nothing to advance the settlement discussions in this case and, as mentioned above, is a misstatement of the law.

We confirm your voicemail message of November 19, 2009 that should these proceedings be suspended upon the filing of our motions, that your client is not inclined to offer Andrew Towle for deposition on December 3, 2009.

We intend to have our motions filed by early next week and will advise you accordingly. We will also provide you with our privilege log at that time.

Very truly yours,

R. Glenn Schroeder

27. Georgia-Pacific is the owner of a federal trademark registration, Reg. No. 1,979,345, issued by the United States Patent and Trademark Office on June 11, 1996, for the Quilted Diamond Design, as depicted below in combination with a floral and heart motif, for “bathroom tissue.”

PRIOR ENFORCEMENT OF GEORGIA-PACIFIC'S RIGHTS

REGISTRANT'S BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO SUSPEND PROCEEDINGS PURSUANT TO 37 C.F.R. § 2.117(a)

Registrant, Georgia-Pacific Consumer Products LP ("Georgia-Pacific"), respectfully requests that the Board suspend this proceeding pursuant to 37 C.F.R. § 2.117(a) on the grounds that both parties to this proceeding are engaged in a civil action in federal court that will have a bearing on this proceeding.

I. BACKGROUND

In February 2009, Georgia-Pacific filed a civil action against Petitioner in the United States District Court in the Northern District of Georgia. The case was transferred to United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois as Case No. 09-CV-2263, captioned Georgia-Pacific Consumer Products LP v. Kimberly-Clark Corporation, Kimberly-Clark Global Sales, Inc., and Kimberly-Clark Worldwide, Inc. A copy of the Amended Complaint is attached as Exhibit A. Petitioner's Answer is attached as Exhibit B. Georgia-Pacific seeks judgment from the District Court against Petitioner for trademark infringement, trademark dilution, unfair competition, and unlawful trade practices based on Georgia-Pacific's rights in its Quilted Diamond Design depicted below.

Kimberly-Clark's petition for cancellation is a strategic ploy, and an ill-fated effort to deflect from the same issues being decided in Georgia-Pacific's lawsuit.

Reflecting the obvious overlap between the proceedings, Georgia-Pacific's amended complaint asserts rights deriving in part from its QUILTED and QUILTED NORTHERN trademarks, which are covered by numerous trademark registrations, including:

II. ARGUMENT

The Board has the power to suspend proceedings in favor of a pending civil action pursuant to 37 C.F.R. § 2.117(a), which provides:

Whenever it shall come to the attention of the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board that a party or parties to a pending case are engaged in a civil action or another Board proceeding which may have a bearing on the case, proceedings before the Board may be suspended until termination of the civil action or the other Board proceeding.

The Board regularly has exercised this power in the interests of promoting judicial economy and conserving resources. See Vining Indus., Inc. v. Libman Co., No. 23,546, 1996 TTAB LEXIS 455, at *6 (T.T.A.B.
